BURLEY HOUSES

To Open in December to Receive Crops

Directors Hear of Saving of $750,000 Through Air-Drying of Green Tobacco—Membership Close to 75,000 Mark Set as Goal

Receiving plants of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association will be opened to receive the 1922 crop some time between the first and the fifteenth of December, according to information given the members of the Board of Directors of the Association, in regular monthly session at Lexington last week, at which all the directors were present. They heard a report on the expense of marketing the tobacco of the members, which with every possible item of cost added will not exceed 75 cents a hundred pounds, as contrasted with a probable average of $1.25 a hundred pounds for the growers who sold outside the Association; learned that they had increased the value of their tobacco $750,000 by proper grading and air-drying; and listened to a brief but feeling and eloquent contrast of conditions prevailing now in the Burley district and those which existed in the crop year of 1920-1921 by Judge Robert W. Bingham, of Louisville, who also reported to the directors on the success of the dark tobacco growers in forming their cooperative association.

Judge Bingham said that some of the leaders of the movement in the dark belt, when they learned that lack of money was keeping out tenants on their farms, raised the money required by the tenants and loaned it to them.

The report of Chief of the Field Service Division William Collins showed that the Association now has 73,265 members and that it is likely the number will exceed 75,000 by the time contracts being signed this week and next Monday are in.

Humphrey, Robinson & Company reported an audit of the books to Chairman W. H. Shanks, of the auditing Committee, who read the report to the directors. It showed every cent received accounted for and that the expense of warehouse operation for the year was $2.63 a thousand pounds and of warehousing and grading $3.43 a thousand pounds.

Of the 54,000 hogsheds sold to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company 13,749 hogsheds had been delivered, President Stone reported. Mr. Stone also said that three of the big tobacco concerns are ready to buy the tobacco of the association as soon as it is delivered.

What Does

"Subluxation" Mean?

When a nerve is pressed upon by a vertebra in the spinal column it is called a subluxation of the vertebra.

The Chiropractor, by adjusting this subluxated vertebra, relieves the pressure on the nerve which runs through it; by so doing he gives nature a chance to build up the affected part of the body.

Life force is nerve energy. Stop the normal flow of nerve energy and life force is hindered.

The Chiropractor relieves the pressure on the nerves—the life force flows freely—normally.

Book Notes

The American novel emerged early in the 19th. century as the romantic story—a high exponent of this style is "Last of the Mohicans." A change both in material and in method of treatment since the days of Cooper is apparent to the most casual student of American literature.

Perhaps O'Henry most definitely marked the change, and since his time the story written chiefly for story interest has found its material largely in the common realities of life.

The following authors are outstanding figures in this field of writing and are well represented on the shelves of the Woman's Club Library.

Select any one of these writers when next you visit the library:—Ingraham Lovel, (Mrs. Bacon), Mary Roberts Reinhardt, Zona Gale, William Allen White, Gene Porter, Kathleen Norris, Booth Tarkington, Joseph C. Lincoln, Rex Beach and a long list of others as good or better.

DEMOCRATIC

Goes Back to Fold by Small Majority

Gilbert's Majority 63 in County

Probably one of the quietest elections ever held in Garrard county was held here last Tuesday, little interest being manifested and only about one-half of the total vote cast.

Congressman Ralph Gilbert carried the county over his republican opponent by a majority of 63 votes. Two years ago Swoppe carried the county by a majority of 573. This year about 3,000 votes were cast, while the 1920 election brought out a total vote of 5,500.

Gilbert's immense majority in the district is virtually a landslide, reaching probably 5,000 more, he carrying every county in the district with the exception of Casey and Adair, and possibly Madison. The following counties gave him handsome increased majorities: Mercer, 400; Anderson, 750; Boyle, 783; Shelby, 1,800; Lincoln, 715; Spencer, 770; Jessamine, 500. Indications are that Madison goes republican by a small majority.

Eleventh Month

Eleventh Day

Eleventh Hour

The three elevens will be observed in Lancaster and throughout Garrard county on Saturday, Nov. 11th., at 11 A. M., when all the church bells of the county will be rung, and all whistles will be blown in memory of the boys who made the supreme sacrifice in the great world war. All business houses are asked to close for the five minutes and the citizens in this county are asked to stand one minute in silent prayer at this time, were requests made by Post Commander Dr. J. E. Edwards of the Heidelberg Post No. 35.

An Armistice celebration was planned to be pulled off in Lancaster on Nov. 10th., at which time the local High School foot ball team was to have played a game of ball and take a great part in the celebration.

However, it was impossible to arrange a game between any team for Friday and from the fact that the game of foot ball to be played will be staged in Lancaster, Ky., Nov. 11th., at 1:45 P. M., this celebration was called off by Post Commander Edwards and R. H. Hays, Chairman of the Program Committee and the members present at the meeting Tuesday night. It was further agreed to assist the school in calling off this celebration in order that everyone who can will have a chance to go to the foot ball game Saturday.

Pie Supper

Benefit of the American Legion

One of the greatest pie suppers ever pulled off in Garrard county will be staged at Paint Lick High School Auditorium Friday night, Nov. 17th., at 7:30 P. M., when Captain Thos. K Price, Vice Commander of the local Post No. 35, will sell to the highest bidder some of the best pies ever made in Garrard county. Every Legionnaire and ex-service man in this county are asked to be present on this night and bring with them their wives, sisters, fathers and mothers and PIES. This is for a worthy cause and it is the duty of every citizen to go out to Paint Lick and help this worthy cause.

Grateful for Gifts

The Heidelberg Post is very grateful, both individually and as a body to several Paint Lick merchants who gave so generously, a lot of gifts for the athletic meet which was to have been held here tomorrow, but was later postponed. STILL IN DOUBT

Control of Next House May Fall to Democrats

The country today is watching with much interest the nip and tuck race for control of the next house of representatives, which seems to be the closest since the war days of 1916. The election Tuesday saw what at one time seemed to have been a democratic landslide, it saw scores of men, brought in by the Republican wave two years ago, go out with the Democratic undertow.

Control of the next House continued in doubt, with the Republicans leading 214 to 203 on returns received up to one o'clock this morning. The 16 remaining districts, scattered throughout the country, held the key to the necessary 218 majority, with the prospect that the final result might not be known until Thursday afternoon with a half dozen votes the margin. The Republicans held the Senate, but by a reduction of a half dozen votes.

Republican casualties, which broke with the first returns Tuesday, defeating Governor Miller and Senator Calder of New York, continued with somewhat lessened force Wednesday as returns dribbled in. They told of further Republican losses in the senate and house, and governors and state legislators, although the belated congressional results were somewhat more favorable to the Republicans.

Among the additional Republican stalwarts who went down to defeat definitely Wednesday on additional results were Senators Kellogg, of Minnesota, beaten by Dr. Hendrik Shipstead, farmer-laborite, and Senator Townsend of Michigan, the latter losing to former Governor Woodbridge N. Ferris, the first Democratic senator to be elected from Michigan in 70 years. Also definitely defeated, by Senator Kendrick, Democrat, was Representative Mondell of Wyoming, Republican floor leader, who aspired to the senate.

Lodge Wins by 8,425

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, it finally turned out, had a plurality of 8,425 over his Democratic opponent, Colonel Gaston, instead of the 1,945 reported early Wednesday. Through a transposition of figures in The Associated Press tabulation Senator Lodge's plurality was shown as being reduced to 1,945, and other news distributing agencies in some manner arrived at the same figures.

Loss of control of the senate by the Republicans was not threatened, although they suffered a net loss of six. Eight Republican senators were defeated, but this the party countered by defeating two Democrat senators, Hitchcock of Nebraska, and Pomerene of Ohio. The Republicans had carried 11 and the Democrats 19 of the 35 senatorial contests. Of the five still in the balance, Democrats were leading in all—Montana, Utah, New Mexico, West Virginia and Washington.

Woman's Club Notes

Children's Book Week beginning Nov. 12th., will be observed by every Woman's Club that is 100 per cent in community service.

Mothers of our town are asked to call Saturday afternoon and examine the books that the Club recommends for young children. The shelves are full of stories of fairies and flowers and animals and children of histories and of poems. And somewhere between these children's fairy tales that never grow old, such as Alice in Wonderland, and adult reading such as the "Brimming Cup" and the "Story of Julia Page," these are books that are particularly suitable for young people not ready for the latest fiction. The Library is fortunate in offering these splendid stories for our boys and girls:

"Call of the Wild," "Daddy Long Legs," "Emmy Lou," "The Enchanted Barn," "Freckles," "Gray Friar's Bobby," "Girl of the Limberlost," "Jungle Tales," "Just David," "Lad-die," "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," "Molly Make Believe," "Penrod," "Seventeen," "Rebecca of Sunny Brook Farm" and "Gentle Julia."

TART REPLY

To Criticisms Being Circulated Maliciously About Our Foot Ball Team

In winning eight straight games and not meeting defeat during the entire season, the Lancaster High School foot ball team is having some difficulty in making up a schedule for the balance of the season. Evidently from the fact that the opposition know in the beginning it is courting defeat. But what we started to say was this: There has been some malicious criticism circulated throughout the state regarding the eligibility of some of our boys who play on our local team. This unwarranted, unjust and untrue report reached the ears of the superintendent of the Midway City Schools, causing him, he claims, to cancel the engagement to meet our boys here November 10th.

The result of this unkind and unholty criticism, has brought forth the following letter which has been forwarded to the authorities at Midway, and should clear the mind of the most sceptical.

Here it is: Lancaster, Ky. November 4, 1922.

Supt. F. V. McChesney
Midway City Schools
Midway, Ky.

My dear Sir: We understand that you or your Athletic Board of Control are in possession of certain statements and reports concerning our foot ball team which reflect upon the honor of the officers and the student body of the Lancaster Graded School. We can see how rumors may occasionally spread concerning schools but we do not see how reports of this nature can be secured upon direct investigation unless some party or parties are maliciously lying about a team. We wish to assure you that our men, participating in athletic contests in our school are bonafide members of our local high school or grades and have been 100 per cent eligible for every single contest in which they have played. It is impossible for us to offer any probable reason for these false reports unless it could be that some one is envious of the rather fortunate record that our teams have made, not only this year but for the last three years, especially in foot ball. The records of the members of our team are open to inspection to any one who does not wish to take our statements for their eligibility.

Nay even, we urge you to choose a representative citizen of Midway and send him here to go over our records in detail in order to satisfy himself as to the personnel of our foot ball team and either give foundation to these reports or brand them as lies. We hereby invite, earnestly, such an inspection and agree to pay traveling expenses and entertainment for same, without the slightest hesitation. We further agree to pay to this representative a forfeit of $25.00 (twenty-five dollars) if any member of our team is found to be irregular in his classification, or to have played at any time when he was ineligible to participate in such contest.

In further proof of the fact that we are dealing in a manner that is, now, and has always been, fair and square in every respect, we have affixed our signatures below and have caused our respective titles or offices to be written thereunder.

Respectfully yours,
J. E. Stormes, President

VENERABLE MAN

OF MYSTERY

Traveling on Foot to Unknown Destination, Falls dead in Court House Yard

Vivid Recital of Tragic Occurrence Which Happened Here Two Decades Ago

(By Clay Sutton)

Perhaps one of the saddest events connected with the history of this city involving the sudden passing of a human soul, occurred here on a hot August afternoon in 1900. On this particular occasion a small group of gentlemen were sitting in the shady yard of the Court House, conversing informally on general topics, when an aged pedestrian, tall and neatly dressed, whom no one seemed to know, approached and asked in polite accents if he might sit a while and rest, as he had been walking all day. We welcomed him and he took a seat.

He proved to be a man of affable manners and diversified knowledge, and from the very first we were charmed with his singular magnetism. Altho his brow was pale, he seemed physically robust. His long white hair and beard gave him the appearance of an aged prophet marching along the last lap of life's rugged pathway; and as we looked on his kindly, serene face, which seemed to diffuse a kind of subdued radiance, we felt instinctively the presence of a man who was following in the footsteps of HIM whose pity is infinite and whose love undergirds the vast world.

There could be no mistake. Certain lofty souls, refined and cast forth from the abyss of some frightful suffering or misfortune, at times manifest these strange, luminous phenomena. Here, indeed, was the rare and tranquil beauty of age—the reflected splendor of a profound internal peace.

In the ensuing conversation the stranger took part with easy freedom, commenting with intelligence on the attractive features of the city, and noting in particular the noble Corinthian architecture of the Temple of Justice in whose shadow the little party was sitting. He had also observed, he said, some interesting scenic bits from the highway over which he had come, as well as some wonderful cloud effects in the evening sky, as he approached the city. For some strange reason, which would be difficult to explain, no one inquired whence he had come or whether he was going, and when he rose to depart we were a little regretful, for his presence had seemed to us a benediction. Pointing toward the setting sun, he said he was traveling homeward in that direction and ventured the conjecture that there was a river he would soon have to cross.

There was, in truth, a stream in his pathway, but it was dark and cold. He was never to see it with his mortal eyes, for as he bade us adieu and turned into the street he suddenly lurched, clutched wildly in the air above his head and fell heavily backwards upon the earth, where he lay quite still. An unseen icy finger had suddenly touched and forever stilled his heart. He heaved a gentle sigh, but from his lips, on which a reddish foam presently appeared, no word came. Wrapped in gloom and chilled in this dreadful presence, we stood bewildered before this tragic spectacle, knowing full well that the spirit of the venerable traveler had indeed gone home.

Thus terminated this historic but mournful incident. Today, out there among the silent sleepers, where the night wind moans a melancholy dirge among the cypress trees and lettered marble, may be found his entombed dust, as well as the hidden story of his hapless life.

Mercer County Grid-ders No Trouble for The Cox Men

Lancaster High Wins Easily, Making Their Eighth Straight Game

Lancaster High School foot ball eleven journeyed to Harrodsburg last Friday where Coach Heber practiced them for the big Covington High School eleven which will be played here Nov. 11th., 1922, at 1:45 P. M.

The Harrodsburg lads were indeed very nice to the local High School State Champions by allowing our "Own" eleven to use their field and by them furnishing some fifteen or twenty men to practice the local boys up. The first half found Captain Cox and his gridders crossing the goal lines at will and they succeeded in running up twenty points in the first half, at this stage of the game the entire second string men were given a try at the Mercer county lads team and they succeeded in holding them to tie the last half. Lancaster High seconds being able to put across another marker and Captain Cox and his gridders returned to Lancaster Friday night with another victory of 27 to 0.

The locals are practicing hard in order that they will be able to have Covington return to their native City with the small end of a score. Let's all go out and root for the High School lads Saturday.

Covington High

Play Saturday

The greatest of all games will be staged in Lancaster Saturday, Nov. 11th., at 1:45 P. M., when Captain Cox will line up his men against the strong Covington High School eleven on Leavell field.

The green and white jerseyed men are in the pink of condition and they hope to give the City lads the same good game that they have given the eight other teams they have had the pleasure of meeting this grid season.

Lancaster High School foot ball eleven can boast of the fact that they have this year one of the best and strongest High School elevens to be found in Central Kentucky and they have already taken the scalp of every team adjoining Garrard county, who have the nerve to meet them.

This will be the best team that the local eleven will meet this year, except the strong Cynthia High School, which plays here Nov. 24th.

Buy some green and white ribbon and be on hand promptly at 1:30 P. M. Saturday. This game will be called at this hour in order that the Covington team will have a chance to catch a train out of Danville for Covington—after their second defeat, the Hughes High School of Cincinnati having defeated Covington last week.

Second Team to

Play Richmond

The Second Team of the Lancaster High School is booked to play the Second Team of the Richmond School here next Monday afternoon. Our boys are ready and anxious for this little friendly fray, and its dollars and doughnuts they will "bring home the bacon."

USEFUL INFORMATION PICKED UP AT FAIRS

Farmers and Breeders Given Opportunity to Study.

In Practically All Parts of Country Excellent Exhibits Are to Be Attractive Features—Animals May Be Purchased.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Exhibits of improved livestock and poultry at county and state fairs this year promise to be unusually interesting, according to information received by the United States Department of Agriculture from many sources. In practically all parts of the country excellent livestock exhibits are to be attractive features of fairs. The attention which breeders and farmers have been giving to good livestock, combined with good feed and care, have resulted in some exceptionally well-bred and well-fitted animals.

In encouraging farmers to take advantage of the opportunities which fairs and livestock exhibits give for observing improved livestock and poultry the Department of Agriculture places emphasis on the following points: Livestock displays afford an opportunity to study breeds and types and to see a large number of good animals. In the case of meat animals the size, conformation, and uniformity are worthy of special study in view of increasing tendency to raise purebred and high grade stock as market animals as well as for breeding.

Farmers attending livestock displays obtain useful information by meeting others who are interested in superior breeding and feeding methods. Besides the ideas exchanged and information gained, new enthusiasm for the work is a common result. Animals and poultry may be purchased at most fairs though as a rule it is more satisfactory for a farmer to purchase animals at the home of the breeder than to buy fitted animals at fairs. Animals that have been prepared for exhibition usually are priced higher than unfitted ones of similar quality and breeding.

CAREFUL IN CRANKING TRUCK

Drivers Ought to Be Sure That the Spark Is Fully Retarded—Plan to Avoid Injury.

Before cranking the engine, the driver of a motor truck should be sure the spark lever is fully retarded and that the gears are in neutral. If it is attempted to crank the engine with the spark lever advanced, the chances are that the engine will backfire, possibly resulting in a broken arm. Furthermore, if the driver succeeds in cranking his engine when it is in gear it may start and run over him and be the cause of considerable damage to the truck and other property as well.

It pays to be on the safe side when the cost of taking a chance means possibly damage suits of two kinds—one of injury to the driver, and the other on account of property damage of one sort or another. There have been cases where damage suits have arisen from injuries done to outside persons other than the driver, all because this rule was not obeyed.

MEANING OF THE WORD VEAL

Departments of Agriculture Frequently Called Upon to Decide Between Veal and Beef.

There seems to be marked variation of opinion as to what is meant by the word veal. Ordinarily, what one hears the word uttered, he thinks of the carcass or meat of a young bovine. In most cases this conception of the meaning of the word veal is sufficient and it can be dismissed from the mind without further consideration; but, when one is called upon to state just what constitutes veal, there may be some difficulty experienced in determining when a bovine carcass is or is not to be regarded as veal.

Departments of agriculture are sometimes called upon to decide whether or not a rather heavy carcass should be classified as veal or beef and the decision conforms to the conclusion of authorities on the subject, which is as follows:

Calf carcasses weighing less than 300 pounds, with comparatively light-colored, fine-grained flesh, are classified as veal.

Love Handed Down

By ELLA SAUNDERS

(Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Mother, I've got such a piece of news for you!" Kitty Blaine, who had arrived home for her two weeks' vacation three minutes before, stood facing her pretty mother in the doorway of their home. "You remember that Mr. Croft, who used to be a beau of yours, that you gave me a letter to? Well, he wants to marry me!"

Mrs. Blaine looked at her daughter with a little sense of shock. It seemed only yesterday that Eddie Croft and she had strolled under those same apple trees, accepted lovers. Then had come the quarrel about a trifle, they had drifted apart, and had heard nothing of each other for years.

It was only a few months before that they had again come into touch by one of those little coincidences that seem so strange, yet are so common. Eddie Croft had answered a letter of Edna Blaine's addressed to the corporation which he served, regarding a position for her daughter, and had promised to do his best for her.

"And have you accepted him, dear?"
the mother asked.

"Yes, of course," answered Kitty promptly. "Why, don't you know he's Mr. Roger's right hand man in the corporation? He must be as rich as Croesus. And he told me—" Kitty giggled—"that he hadn't married all these years because he never met any one he cared for as he did you, until he saw me, and that I was your very image at twenty."

"And you care for him, Kitty?" The mother put her hands on the girl's shoulders and looked at her anxiously.
"Care for him?" Kitty wrinkled her pretty brows and laughed. "Well, I suppose it's possible to care for any one if you make up your mind to,
isn't it?" she answered. "Of course,
he's forty-eight."

Edna Blaine sighed. Girls were different from what they had been in her young days. Then love was everything—now it was money that counted.
They wanted a good time from the start. She felt a pang for Kitty, and then another for Eddie—perhaps one for the past as well.

"And he's coming down on Saturday to tell you about it," Kitty said.

Edna Blaine sighed again. Somehow she did not quite feel like seeing Eddie after all those years. And her heart was troubled for both of them.

What sort of wife would Kitty make for Eddie—Kitty, irresponsible, featherheaded, and again renewing her long-standing flirtation with Jim Baker, who lived at the end of the street, and was in the bank?

"Mother, Jim's promised to take me out in his car tomorrow."

"My dear, do you think it quite right for you to go about with Jim,
under the circumstances?"

"Oh, my dear mother, do please remember that this is the twentieth century and not the nineteenth," said Kitty.

Edna Blaine felt lost and bewildered. Especially on the Saturday afternoon, when Eddie came down, and Kitty was away—with Jim, she suspected. The sight of Eddie was a shock, too. They walked up from the station together, and she would not have known him in the bronzed, stalwart man who strode beside her, radiant protection somehow; she could hardly keep from crying.

"Well, Edna?" Then, as he faced her inside the house the tears did come. It was awkward; but not so awkward as when Kitty returned. It was a very mournful evening, and Edna saw Eddie glancing from her to Kitty in a puzzled way.

He was staying over Sunday, and Edna gasped when Kitty calmly pleaded an appointment for the afternoon.

"You see, I didn't know you were staying over," she explained.

Eddie took Edna for a country walk.
The spell of the past was upon both of them, they were very silent as they turned homeward in the evening.

"I hope you and Kitty will be happy, Eddie," said Edna softly.

He did not answer, and she dared not look at his face.

Suddenly they heard voices in the darkness on the other side of the elms that bordered the road.

"But, Jim, I—you mustn't. You know I'm engaged."

"Do you love him, Kitty? If you don't, you're sinning against your better nature in marrying him. Do you love him? Answer me!"

"No!" came the almost inaudible whisper. "It's always been you, Jim."

The voices died away. There was the faint sound of pacing footsteps—lovers' footsteps. Eddie turned to Edna.

"And it's always been you, Edna," he said. "It was the part of you I saw in her. Now it's you forever."

Mother Didn't Reply.

Bobby, four years old, accompanied his mother to a woman's club meeting one afternoon, where the women, very tastefully gowned, hatted and veiled, discussed the affairs of their organization for two hours. On the way home Bobby said: "Mother, why don't you buy a veil and cover up your face and look pretty?"

Force of Bad Example.

F. P. A. started it and now he's got us doing it. Perpend! "Alack!"
sighed the liquor-tickler with a lack o' lucere, "I haven't a lick o' liquor in my locker."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Mother-To-Be, Read This—

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers. When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy,
"Mother's Friend." Mrs.
C. J. Hartman, Scrant-
on, Pa., says:
"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used Mother's Friend and had only a nurse;
we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes."

Early Dabblers in Dentistry.

The first physician to speak of treat-

The science of dentistry, however, may be said to date from 1839, when Prof.

ganic connection between the vascular and the vital soft parts of the frame and the hard substance of the teeth."
His work appeared in 1840-1845.

No Badge of Dishonor

A city paper lays stress upon the fact that a great many of the criminals of this country are of foreign birth.

The editor of that sheet might also have stated, with justice, that hundreds of thousands of our best citizens are also of foreign birth.

There are two vital causes which contribute to the present state of lawlessness on the part of certain foreigners now resident in this country.

First, our immigration laws are entirely too lax. Foreigners are admitted without proper investigation as to their characters in their own lands.

Second, upon arrival in this country the foreigner, unable to speak our language, is practically turned loose upon an indifferent public, to become a good citizen or a curse to us—as his inclinations and past training may lead him.

What we need is a system whereby a foreigner can be taken in hand upon arrival and converted into a good citizen.

If we are lax in our methods of treating him when he first comes to us, we should not be surprised if the criminal element of our population gains an ascendancy over him before he has familiarized himself with the benefits to be derived from good citizenship.

The possession of a foreign name is by no means a badge of dishonor, either in this or in any other country.

Use Your Bargain Eye

A merchant doesn't spend money merely for the purpose of seeing his name in print. He is too much of a business man to part with his dollars unless there is a good prospect of securing a legitimate return upon his investment.

He doesn't advertise goods that he cannot recommend, because he knows that such an imposition upon the public in a country town would soon put him out of business.

He doesn't gouge his customers, because he knows they would soon go elsewhere and buy for less money—and that would mean an end to him.

It is reasonable to suppose, therefore, that when he does advertise an article that article is worth having and the price is within reason.

When you buy from a local merchant that merchant's reputation for square dealing is behind the goods you buy.

Keep these common sense facts in mind, and use your bargain eye upon the advertising pages of this paper and the merchants who use them.

Make Them Make Good

In many parts of the country the American people have spoken at the polls, and a new grist of public officials are coming into office.

If they keep only a small portion of their campaign promises they will make history as no other officials have ever done before.

Making promises comes easy to a candidate. It is part of the game.

Forgetting them comes quite as easy to the elected official. That, also, is part of the game.

But now that the elections are over, and new officials are entering upon their careers, the public should be as prompt in reminding them of their promises as they were prolific in making them.

Put the boot on the other foot and see how long it can be worn.

MUCH INTEREST

Manifested in Revival at Presbyterian Church

The revival which began last week at the Presbyterian church continues with increased interest, services being held each afternoon and evening, the auditorium being well filled on each occasion.

The sermons of Rev. S. S. Daughtry are being well received and full of thought and thoroughly enjoyed by his audiences. The choir under the leadership of Mr. Allen W. Caley, is one of the outstanding features of the meeting and is composed of the best talent in the city. The meeting will continue throughout next Sunday and perhaps longer, if the interest continues to increase.

Giving a Drink of Liquor or Held Violation of Law

If You Have Whiskey or Moonshine

In Your Cellar Keep it There—

If You Share it With Friends

The Law Will Get You

Frankfort, Ky.—The 1920 liquor law was extended recently by the court of appeals to include the giving away of a drink of whiskey, moonshine or other intoxicant, in the case of the commonwealth against Tom Wells, of Shelby county. The finding of the Shelby circuit court, which sustained a demurrer to the indictment charging violation of the liquor law, was reversed by the full court.

Wells was charged with having given one-fourth of a pint of liquor to Larson Roberts, in Shelby county, last January. The indictment was returned under an act of March 23, 1920, which prohibits the selling, manufacturing or giving away of intoxicating liquors. Wells contended that the legislature did not have the right to regulate the private affairs of citizens and claimed that the act was an infringement on personal liberty.

Wells also held that the indictment did not charge a public offense, or, in other words, that it was not unlawful to give away liquor which was his own property.

The opinion, which was written by Judge Charles Moorman, stated that the seventh amendment to the Kentucky constitution prohibited the manufacture, sale or transport of intoxicating liquors except for sacramental, medicinal, scientific or mechanical purposes, but that it did not restrict the legislature in dealing with the subject of intoxicating liquors.

Business Boosts

Intelligent advertising and intelligent management involve team work of the highest order.

Too many merchants would rather see merchandise rot on their shelves than to go to the trouble of getting the stuff out where people can see it and purchase.

Many a bolt of fabric has served as the nesting place for months because its owner wouldn't take his feet down off his desk long enough to dust it off and put a price on it AND ADVERTISE THE FACT that it offered a "real bargain" for anyone who needed merchandise of its kind.

The merchant who trains his clerks TO PULL SLOW SELLING STOCK TO THE FRONT instead of pushing it to the back has started things in the right direction. And if he has the good judgment TO ADVERTISE THESE ARTICLES as "leaders" in a way and manner that lets the people know he means business—he will find this slow stuff serving as trade-getters instead of dust accumulators.

Methodist Church News

A Scout troop was recently organized by the pastor in connection with the church and congregation. The Scout idea offers a fine, wholesome program, touching every interest of the boy and may be used by the church as an effective way of reaching the boys for Christian life and service. Mr. Whittaker has had charge of a troop for several years in connection with his work as a pastor and has found it to be a most worthwhile service and opportunity.

The boys will meet at their room at the parsonage two Friday evenings a month.

Miss Evelyn Daniels will lead the Epworth League Sunday evening. The service will be at six, giving plenty of time for the members to go to the revival service at 7:30.

Wednesday evening at seven the prayer service will resume the studies in the Sermon on the Mount, the topic being "The Spirit of True Prayer," Matthew 6:5-8. We are having good attendance and interest.

Come to the service Sunday morning. If you do not worship elsewhere we cordially invite you to make this your church home. You will find it a place of faith and fellowship. Enroll in a Sunday School class, take part in the Epworth League, enjoy the helpful hour Wednesday evening and be with us in the morning and evening hours of worship.

In Memoriam

It is truly said that, "Death rides on every passing breeze and lurks in every sunny flower."

Just one year ago the white-winged messengers from the Celestial City waited the spirit of Alexander Campbell Miles to the God who gave it. How we miss him, but we know that our loss is Heaven's gain. We do not mourn as those who have no hope—far he sleeps to awake on the resurrection morn and will stretch forth his hands to take us back with him to the God he loves. As a husband he was true and faithful to the end; as a father he was tender, loving and kind; as a friend and neighbor, no community was ever blessed with one better. "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." The memory of him and his good works will always be with us. Truly it can be said of him that he "being dead yet speaketh."

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep, Where none ever wakes to weep, A calm and sweet repose, Who only those in our Jesus knows."

—The Family.

Loads of Liquor

Prohibition Agent William Kincaid And Deputies Capture Liqueur

At an early hour this morning William Kincaid, prohibition agent of Lancaster, with deputies passed thru Danville en route to Lexington with two truck loads of very fine real liquor. The parties who had the liquor was being hauled through in the two large trucks. It is not known just how much liquor there was but the quantity must have exceeded two hundred cases. Agent Kincaid and his assistant recently made a big haul at Perryville when ten whiskey runners heavily loaded attempted to pass through that city. It is thought the haul last night was made some miles west of Perryville. Many think that the liquor which was seized last night was from the Rugby Distillery near Louisville.—Danville Advocate.

Misrepresentation

Mr. Charles Scanlon, of Pittsburg, recently answered in a very concise fashion some of the misrepresentations of the anti-prohibitionists, and it is worth while to summarize his statement, under the caption "Fact and Fiction."

Fiction—Prohibition was hastily enacted.

Fact—No question ever decided in America was agitated over a longer period or better understood.

Fiction—Prohibition was the work of a minority.

Fact—Before national prohibition became effective thirty-four states had gone "dry;" three-fifths of all the people were living under prohibitory laws, and four-fifths of the United States territory, was "dry." Moreover, Congress submitted the amendment by a two-thirds vote, and only two states, with less than one-thirtieth of the population, failed to ratify it. Fiction—Prohibition was decreed while the American soldiers were away. Fact—The Congress which submitted the amendment for ratification was elected five months before the war. Kentucky, Ohio, Michigan and other States enormously increased their vote in favor of prohibition after the soldiers had returned from the army.

Fiction—More liquor is consumed than before prohibition.

Fact—Before prohibition 600 distilleries produced annually one hundred and sixty-eight million gallons of spirits, and 1,300 breweries manufactured 1,885,000,000 gallons of beer. Today a mere fraction of this enormous flood of intoxicating liquor is being produced, while importations equal less than one-half of one per cent of former years.

Fiction—Prohibition interferes with personal liberty.

Fact—So do the Ten Commandments.

Fiction—Prohibition makes hypocrites.

Fact—Treason and anarchy preached by the liquor advocates will not make men more patriotic, candid, and honest.

Fiction—Prohibition cannot be enforced.

Fact—It is being enforced, or the hue and cry would not be so great.

A reader of the New York Times, which caters to the nullification element, was asked the other day by a reader the following questions which he has not undertaken so far to answer:

"Do you give preference to drinking men when employing them on your staff or in your workshop? Do you believe any percentage of alcohol tends to promote efficiency? Would you be in favor of the engineer on your train taking a generous drink before starting, and how about the train dispatcher? When should he take his drink? When should the doctor do his drinking?"

Henry Ford knows the answer, if The Times doesn't.—Central Methodist.

The faculty and members of the school gave an entertainment and Masquerade in the Auditorium of the High School building Monday evening, Oct. 30th. An interesting program was given by members of the school, assisted by local violinists. The room was very beautifully decorated with Halloween colors of black and yellow, autumn foliage, black cats and jack-o-lanterns, which gave a very weird appearance. A prize for the best masked couple was presented to Miss Roberta Ray and Bryan Wilcox. Refreshments consisted of peanuts, home-made candy and frappe. A large "fortune cake" decorated with black cats and witches was presented to the school by Mrs. Jess Hill. The occasion proved to be one of unusual pleasure and a neat sum was realized, which will be used for school equipment.

Scotch "Howlers."

Here are some new "howlers" quoted in the Provincial, the magazine of the Edinburgh Provincial Training college: "Socrates died of an overdose of wisdom." "A marauder is an animal with a pouch in its stomach, into which it retired when hard pressed." "An epitaph is a short, sarcastic poem." "Beckett met Henry on the other steps and said, 'What he king?' Henry severely massaged him."

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Herndon, of Louisville, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hogan Ballard at "Pine Crest."

Mrs. Mary Ragsdale, of Missouri, came Tuesday for a visit to her brother, Messrs. R. K. and W. H. Swope and other relatives.

The "Community Shower" which was given Thursday night in the Masonic Hall for Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Burnside was a very enjoyable affair. Quite a number attended and the guests of honor received a nice collection of useful presents. Hot chocolate and wafers were served.

Congressman Ralph Gilbert, of Shelbyville, spoke here last Tuesday night in the interest of his campaign. While he has represented the 8th district for the last two years so ably in Congress, he has spared no effort in campaigning to keep his majority and add to his strength. His speech here was most interesting and instructive and was greatly enjoyed by every one present. He gave some interesting facts pertaining to the tariff measure, also to some of the other recent bills which have been passed by the present administration. He was introduced by Hon. J. Hogan Ballard in a most pleasing manner.

"Rheumatism? No? No, indeed, it's all gone, every bit of it! It's sunshine and joy for me now for the first time in years. I feel a wonderful glow again in the free motion I used to have when my days were younger. I look at my hands and think of the twists and swellings they used to have. I bend way over to the floor. I haven't been able to do that in many years. I can thank S. S. S. for it all! To me it was a rising sun of joy and liberty. Brothers and sisters in misery, do not close your eyes and think that health, free motion and strength are gone from you forever! It is not so. It is here and now for all of you. S. S. S. is waiting to help you. There is a reason why S. S. S. will help you. When you increase the number of your red-blood cells, the entire system undergoes a tremendous change. CHICKENS

By MARION E. LEIGHTON.

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Drat them chickens!" exploded Cy, as he rose hurriedly from his comfortable rocker on the veranda and bolted down the steps; "they're at that Valler Bantam again!"

Sary dropped her knitting into her lap and sat bolt upright, to stare at the agitated back of her better half, as he made long but rheumatic leaps in the direction of the garden.

He seized the empty water pail and swept toward the garden with murderous intent.

"Don't you dare hurt them chickens, Cy Morrill!" shrieked Sary; "don't you dare! I'm raising them for my summer boarders."

It wasn't Cy's fault that this request was heeded, for the violently flung water pail missed the nearest trespasser by inches. In two minutes there was not a chicken visible.

A little later Cy puffed agitatedly at his pipe and to the tune of his favorite squeaky rocker unburdened his mind to Sary.

"Summer boarders!" he snorted when his indignation had reached the right pitch. "Summer boarders! As if you didn't have enough to do without havin' a crowd of them silly, gigglin' girls an' stiff-collared city dudes to wait on! Summer boarders nuthin'—I ain't goin' to have 'em trampin' my grass all down!"

Sary's mouth became a straight line. "You needn't worry—they won't! And," as he tried to interrupt, "it's no use to argue, Cy Morrill—my mind is made up! I'm goin' to have summer boarders and I'm goin' to earn my own money and I'm goin' to buy what I like with it. There!"

Cy changed his tactics. "Where ye goin' to git 'em?" he scoffed. "You don't s'pose anyone in their right mind would come to this forsaken place, do ye?"

"Is that so?" she flared. "That's all you know about it! I've got six engaged already and four of 'em's comin' Tuesday. Four girls," she finished, triumphantly.

Cy gazed at her in open-mouthed astonishment for a full half minute.

"Well—I snuff," he said disgustedly. Then the creaking of Cy's rocker and the click of Sary's needles were all that broke the peaceful Sabbath silence.

Cy proceeded to rock himself into a perfect rage. He suddenly jumped to his feet and seized the handle of the screen door. Holding it open, he glared back at the obstinate Sary.

"They won't stay long—I promise ye that!" he snapped. Bang went the screen door and he was gone.

But Monday morning found him in a strangely altered mood at which Sary marveled.

"I been thinkin'," he explained. "I dunno but this summer boarder idea's pretty good; who's them two pretty girls' picture on th' mantelpiece?" he asked innocently.

Sary glanced at him suspiciously. "They're comin' tomorrow," she snapped.

Cy nodded a satisfied nod as he strode toward the door. "Good idea after all," he muttered audibly, as he went out.

At noon Sary met him at the door with a letter.

"It's from Johnny," she explained. "He'll be home from college Wednesday."

Tuesday arrived and with it the four girl boarders. Tuesday evening sported a beautiful moon and Sary missed Cy from the family circle about nine o'clock. Investigation showed that Alice (one of the pretty girls) was also missing. Explanations were in order later and Cy rather guiltily confessed that they had been studying astronomy.

Sary snorted contemptuously. They must have found astronomy interesting for they studied it each night thereafter until Sary became desperately jealous and even the snitten Johnny, who had arrived Wednesday and immediately fallen hopelessly in love with Grace (the other of the two pretty girls), noticed that something was wrong.

It required very little investigation to find the trouble, and Johnny took his erring father to task.

"Why, dad—what, for the love of Mike, does a chicken like Alice see in an old duffer like you?" he asked bluntly. "She's only amusing herself at your expense."

Cy winked and nudged his worldly-wise son.

"Don't fool yourself, sonny," he chuckled. "Alice knows what she's doin'."

Then the story came out. "But, gee, dad! You're spoiling my summer with Grace if you force mother to give up her boarders," protested Johnny. "Have a heart, will you, dad?"

Cy looked crestfallen. A few moments he deliberated, then surrendered with a gesture of despair.

"You'll have to fix it with your mother," he announced. "She'd never believe me—never!"

"I'll fix it!" Johnny agreed, joyfully. That evening, from the hammock, Johnny and Grace watched the two old rockers swaying side by side on the veranda.

"Just like we'll be when we get old," whispered Johnny, as he squeezed her hand. "Score another victory for mother."

"And one for mother's son," softly replied Grace.

WATER TANK NOW IMPORTANT ITEM

Unhealthful Mud Puddle Which Affected Stock at All Times Has Been Abolished.

CONCRETE MAKES BIG CHANGE

Any Farmer Can Build Device Similar to One Shown in the Illustration if He Will Follow Instructions Given.

The day of the unsightly, unsanitary mud-hole water tank in the barn lot is a thing of the past.

American farmers, who in the old days struggled against the worst possible conditions in the care of their stock, today have available for their service the most modern methods known to the building trade.

A water tank, often considered of old a minor detail in farm equipment, now is recognized as an important item in the health of farm stock and farm occupants.

Formerly a breeding place for germs, vermin and mosquitoes, the site of the unhealthful mud puddle which affected stock both summer and winter now can be spotlessly clean, dry and sanitary.

Principal Requirement.

While the principal requirement of a water tank is of course that it be watertight, sanitation and permanence also must be considered. Concrete tanks when properly constructed fulfill all of these requirements at a reasonable first cost, with practically no upkeep expense.

Any farmer can construct a water tank similar to the one shown in the picture if he follows these instructions.

The forms, which should preferably be of one-inch material for a large tank, should be prepared so far as is possible before concrete work is begun, then excavation is made about one foot below the ground line of an area a little larger than the proposed tank. If the site is not well drained it may be well to excavate a little deeper. A base of cinders or gravel is then tamped into place and upon it a bed of concrete about six inches thick of a mixture of one part of cement, two parts of sand and four parts of gravel is laid.

As soon as the concrete has hardened so that it will support some weight, the forms for the walls of the tank are put in place and the filling made as rapidly as possible.

A rich mixture of concrete, preferably one part of cement, one and one-half parts of sand and three parts of pebbles or broken stone, is used for this work, and enough help and material should be available so that the entire wall can be constructed in one continuous operation.

In order to make the bottom watertight, the inner forms should not reach to the concrete bed first laid, but a two-inch gap should be left and a layer of concrete equal in thickness to this should be placed so as to be continuous with the concrete in the walls.

Reinforcement Needed.

Reinforcing is, of course, necessary and it is well to have this made "L" shaped and set in the concrete so that the steel extends up into the walls. Bars bent at a right angle should also be placed at the corners, with straight rods extending horizontally in the ends and sides of the tank.

Though not shown in the illustration, a concrete pavement five or six feet wide around the tank is desirable. It can be cast separately and made not less than six inches thick of a 1:2:4 mixture.

HOGGING OFF THE CORN PAYS

Plan Regarded as an Economical Method; Cattle or Sheep Clean Up Much Left.

It is the consensus of opinion among farmers that hogging off corn pays and this fact is borne out by results at most of the agricultural experiment stations. Should you have pigs weighing around 100 lbs to turn in to the corn, you can expect the pigs to gain a pound a day or better when fed a pound of shorts or a half pound of tankage in addition to corn hogged off. With pigs of this size in hogging off corn, they can be expected to consume from five to seven pounds of corn daily. It is an economical method of harvesting an area of corn and if not kept in too late in the season, the cattle or sheep will clean up much of the leaves not touched by the hogs.

Prayer.

More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice rise like a fountain for me night and day. For what are men better than sheep or goats that nourish a blind life within the brain, if, knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer both for themselves and those who call them friend? For so the whole round earth is every way bound by gold chains about the feet of God. —Alfred Tennyson.

Divorce Easy Matter in Assam.

In Assam the woman who tires of her husband and prefers another companion simply calls her husband to her. They sit down and have a perfectly friendly chat, and she offers him a sum of money in exchange for her freedom. The husband then packs his clothes, takes his money and departs. In a few days his place may be taken by another, but this does not even cause a comment in the "smart set" of Assam.

REPORTS ON WEATHER HELPFUL WITH BEES

Notable Success Achieved by Wisconsin Beekeeper.

Enabled to Ascertain When Conditions Are Suitable for Late Flights of Honey Gatherers in Late Autumn Months.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Weather reports issued by the United States Department of Agriculture have been used with notable success by a Wisconsin beekeeper in the handling of bees in fall and spring. By keeping in touch with the local office of the weather bureau at Milwaukee he learns when weather is likely to be mild enough for late flights of bees in the fall before they are put into winter quarters and for early release in the spring.

Honeybees develop dysentery and other serious disorders if kept in the hive too long in winter. This is due to the fact that they will not void their feces while in the hive. It is, therefore, important to shorten the season of housing as much as possible without running into danger of freezing weather or high winds which scatter the colonies. It is highly desirable to give the bees a cleansing flight just before housing.

This apiarist has found that he can expect a satisfactory temperature for flying between November 5 and November 20 practically every year. In a recent autumn there was such temperature November 17. As the official forecast was for much colder weather, he housed his bees November 19. The temperature dropped steadily and reached zero December 1. The month of December was the coldest in 40 years. Other beekeepers, not using the forecasts, left their bees out until about the middle of December, with resulting damage.

Last spring he received a special forecast April 1 announcing that the following day the temperature would be satisfactory for flight. He set the hives out that night, and the following day the temperature went up to 71 degrees and the bees had a "glorious cleansing flight."

SWEET CLOVER FOR PASTURE

Biennial Plant Is Excellent to Use in Rotation—Acre Will Furnish Feed for Cow.

Many farmers have found the biennial white sweet clover an excellent pasture plant to use in rotation. Some have successfully used a rotation of corn, oats and sweet clover. The sweet clover planted with the oats, lives over the winter after oat harvest and comes on the next season. Where it is successfully established, it is found that an acre will pasture a cow for a whole season in a good sweet clover section, and furnish her an abundance of feed. In this plan the essentials for success with sweet clover are to lime the land enough to grow red clover well, plant 20 pounds of scarified sweet clover seed to the acre and inoculate where neither sweet clover nor alfalfa has been grown previously. Permanent pasture in some sections may be improved by this treatment—that is, by limiting the permanent pasture and placing the pasture in the rotation, as suggested by the farmers who have tried this plan.

Pigs, poultry, potatoes, bread, canned vegetables and meats, and other products which boys and girls enrolled in extension clubs grew or prepared following demonstrations by county extension workers were shown in 4,900 exhibits at county, district, and state fairs last year, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture.

INJURY BY JAPANESE BEETLE

Foliage of Many Fruit and Shade Trees Damaged by Immense Number of Insects.

The Japanese beetle was much more abundant during the present season, and over a wider area. Serious damage to the foliage of many trees was caused by the immense number of beetles, especially fruit trees and certain varieties of shade trees, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. There was important injury to early fruit, particularly early apples and early peaches.

Wisdom Displayed by Bees.

It is the habit of bees to place their honey in the coolest place in the hive, and the young insects in the warmest.

Doctor Johnson on Reason.

Sir, you are giving a reason for it; but that will not make it right. You may have a reason why two and two should make five; but they will still make four.—Dr. Johnson.

Composition of Dust.

Dust is made up of particles of unburned carbon from smoke, fragments of wool cotton and hair, living organisms and finely-divided mineral matter. All are constantly being cast into the air and they slip through cracks of houses and settle. After billions of particles have fallen, we say the floor is dusty.

"Yuletide."

The etymology of "Yule" conclusively proves the pagan origin of this pleasant old Christmas custom of the Yule festival. The feast of the sun god Thor—always celebrated in Saxons days at the winter solstice—was termed Yule, the significance of which was ale; and of this word Yule is a corruption.

Photographing the Stars.

It has been recently found that photographs of stars down to the sixth magnitude or degree of brightness can be taken in broad daylight, so that astronomical photography need no longer be confined to the night. If the stellar photographs are taken through a deep red screen, the stars appear distinctly.

What Is a Drought?

According to an official definition which has been in use among meteorologists for over thirty years, an absolute drought is a period of more than fourteen consecutive days not one of which is a rain day. A rain day is a day with 0.1 in. or more of rain (an inch of rain means 101 tons to the acre). A partial drought is a period of more than 28 consecutive days, the mean rainfall of which does not exceed .01 in. per day.
